

Balloon ride

Approximately 1 km west from Angkor Wat a bright yellow helium balloon resembling a giant egg yolk offers visitors a bird's-eye view of the magnificent Angkor temples. The German made helium balloon is attached to a rope and ascends approximately 200 metres, floats for a while and then descends. It only lasts about 10 minutes but it is enough to get some great pictures of Angkor Wat on a clear day.

Helicopter ride

You could also view the wonderful temple complex from above in a helicopter.
